1) Australia ICOMOS archives

In August, 2004 we advised we were in the process of consolidating the archives in Melbourne. At that time, we asked to hear from anyone, especially past members of the Executive Committee, who may still have old records that they would like to hand over.

Thanks to everyone who contacted us and forwarded packages. We received a great response.

The Executive Committee has now decided to take opportunity, in conjunction with the Annual Conference to be held in Melbourne this year, to sort and amalgamate the documents received.

If anyone else has anything to be included, could you please contact the Secretariat, letting us know what you have and approx how much (eg one archive box, a binder) so we can make arrangements for transport.

2) Notice of 2005 Annual General Meeting

Australia ICOMOS Inc
The Australia ICOMOS Annual General Meeting will be held at 5.30 pm on Saturday 26 November, 2005 at the RACV Club, 501 Bourke Street, Melbourne, Victoria.

The notice of Annual General Meeting has been posted to all Individual Members, Retired Members, Honorary Members, Young Professional Members and Institutional Members of Australia ICOMOS Inc.

Included with the notice of AGM are the draft minutes from the 2004 AGM held at the Port Arthur Historic Site on 27 November 2004, the call for nominations to the Executive Committee and a reminder to those members who are still marked as unfinancial for the 2005-06 financial year. Fees for the 2005-06 financial year are now overdue and members are advised that these payments need to be received prior to the AGM to ensure you receive the full benefits of membership. Please save us the additional expense of chasing you for the rest of the year by paying promptly. If you believe we have made an error in our records regarding your membership status, please contact the Secretariat.

If you do not receive your AGM notice within the next few days, it is possible that the letter has gone astray or we need to update your address details. Please contact the Secretariat.

Also please note that nominations for the Executive Committee of Australia ICOMOS close at 5pm on Wednesday, 5 October 2005. All nominations must be received at the Secretariat before then.

If you wish to give your apologies for the AGM please send them to the Secretariat.

The Secretariat can be emailed on austicomos@deakin.edu.au

I look forward to meeting many members in Melbourne in November.

Nola Miles
Returning Officer
Australia ICOMOS Secretariat

3) Announcing:
South Australian Launch of Streetwise Asia

You are invited to the launch of Streetwise Asia  A Practical Guide, and the launch of the associated Streetwise Asia Fund for Urban Heritage Conservation.

At Ayers House, North Terrace, Adelaide,
Thursday, 6 October 2005, at 6pm.

To be launched by Stuart Glenn, NSW State Manager, Parsons Brinckerhoff

Launch sponsored by Norman Waterhouse Lawyers

Streetwise Asia  A Practical Guide is a publication by prominent Australian conservation architect and heritage adviser, Elizabeth Vines. It provides practical guidelines and advice for local communities in Asian countries communities which are challenged by the need to balance the retention of heritage with the need for development of local precincts, towns and cities. The Streetwise Asia Fund for Urban Heritage Conservation will be used to support the practical application of the principles described in the book. All proceeds from the sale of the book will go to the Streetwise Asia Fund.

Elizabeth, together with the National Trust of Australia, has a vision to raise $100,000 in the first year, through the proceeds of the sale of the book and through corporate donations. This will facilitate small scale conservation projects in Asia, which currently have no sources of funding to assist with their implementation. This fund will be managed through the UNESCO Bangkok office, and is made possible by the support of the National Trust which is currently establishing a special tax deductible fund in Australia for this purpose.

The launch is open to all however for numbers, please indicate whether you are able to attend to the National Trust, ph 08 - 82121133 by Monday 3rd October.

4) The EPBC Unit Project:

Workshop series

The EPBC Unit Project is currently running a series of workshops on the EPBC Act around the country. A couple in Adelaide look specifically at the new National Heritage system. The others are on the EPBC Act as a whole, and include a section on the new National Heritage system.

1. FREE NATIONAL HERITAGE WORKSHOPS IN ADELAIDE

The following workshops on the new national heritage system are being presented in Adelaide in October. The workshops look in detail at the new national heritage system including the new Australian Government heritage lists, listing criteria, the listing process, and how listed places are protected under the EPBC Act.

Adelaide (evening): Wednesday 12 October 2005 5pm - 8pm
RSVP: Tracey Rich trich@wwf.org.au

Adelaide (morning): Thursday 13 October 2005 9-12
RSVP Bernadette Irwin 8124 4960 or irwin.bernadette@saugov.sa.gov.au

2. FREE WORKSHOPS ON THE EPBC ACT AROUND THE COUNTRY

The EPBC Unit Project has just kicked off its 2005/6 series of FREE workshops on the EPBC Act. These workshops include information on the new National Heritage system. They also look at the EPBC Act referral and assessment process, and relevant case law. There are plenty of opportunities to ask questions throughout the workshops, and free EPBC Unit Project publications will be available.

5) Call For Papers: American Association of Geographers conference.

CHICAGO, 7-11MARCH, 2006

Session Title: Responsible Tourism

Organised by: Caroline Scarles, University of Bristol, UK.
Lyn Leader-Elliot, Flinders University, Australia

As fragile environments, cultures and societies are increasingly exposed to the relentless demands of tourism, it is vital to examine the role tourism can play in contributing towards the sustainable development of destinations as they strive to accommodate ever-increasing numbers of tourists and travellers. Indeed, an emerging cultural turn in tourist practice and process has witnessed dramatic increase in the demand for and provision of opportunities through which tourists are able to engage in responsible and sustainable tourist practices. From vegetation clearance weekends, to turtle-conservation holidays and trekking the Inca Trail to Machu Picchu in Peru, tourism and the practices and processes associated with the production and consumption of destinations are turning to embrace the issues of responsibility and sustainability. However, the processes and practices of establishing, delivering, implementing and managing such opportunities are inherently imbued with complexities. Indeed, the concept of responsibility is itself extremely complex and raises questions regarding what it is to be responsible, where and with whom does responsibility rest and to whom are tourists responsible? This session therefore invites papers that tackle issues such as:

Theoretical approaches to responsibility in tourism
The ethics of tourist practice and process,
Economic and social (in)justice of tourism,
Environmental impacts of tourism,
Working towards cultural sustainability,
The role of NGO's, Governments and tour operators in responsible tourism,

Papers that offer suggestions for implementing and managing tourism impacts are encouraged.

Please email an abstract of your paper (250 words max) to Caroline Scarles or Lyn Leader-Elliot as soon as possible and by Wednesday 5th of October at the latest

Lyn Leader-Elliot: lyn.leader-elliott@flinders.edu.au

6) Tenth Conference Of The International Association For The Study Of Traditional Environments

December 15-18, 2006. Thammasat University -- Bangkok, Thailand

CALL FOR ABSTRACTS
For scholars and researchers interested in the study of traditional environments, the far-reaching transformations brought by globalization require not only a recalibration of the idea of tradition but also a substantial repositioning within a shifting intellectual environment. While it is clear that contemporary forces of globalization have proven transformative, the transformations have largely defied prediction. Contrary to the expectations that globalization would act as a totalizing force, somehow erasing "tradition" and challenging "cultural coherence," investigations reveal that globalization may more accurately be said to have destabilized the idea of tradition as a repository of authentic ideas and customs. In this way, it has intensified the process of de-linking identity and place and, by extension, intensified the deterritorialization of tradition: a process that has challenged the idea of tradition as an authentic expression of a geographically specific, culturally homogenous and coherent group of people. However, this process is not entirely new. Prior moments of globalization, such as colonialism, have also brought about the deterritorialization of tradition and provide useful points of comparison to the present moment. Prior IASTE conferences have explored the effects of globalization upon understandings of space and place; inquired into the post-traditional condition; analyzed the implications of migration, diasporas, and emerging hybridities; and asked whether or nor the millennium marked the "end of tradition." For the 2006 International IASTE Conference, participants are invited to investigate a new dimension of the transformation of tradition: hyper-traditions.

We use the term "hyper" to refer to social and cultural realms, created and maintained through contemporary technologies of communication, transportation, and information transfer that have radically transformed notions of time and space, forever changing the meanings of distance and immediacy. Hyper-reality is just one of a repertoire of technologies that have altered time and space at different historical moments, including older technologies like world exhibitions. As one form of current time-space altering media, the hyper-real entails simulation: in this realm, the simulation is a map that precedes the territory to which it refers, a map that effectively creates the territory and becomes the reality itself. In this way, perhaps as a response to the perceived "end of tradition" or "loss of heritage" (seen by some as an inevitable by-product of globalization), hyper-traditions emerge in part as references to histories that did not happen, or practices de-linked from the cultures and locations from which they are assumed to have originated. To the degree that they indicate a search for or re-engagement with heritage conducted by those who perceive its loss, hyper-traditions raise fundamental questions about subjectivity in a globalized world. At the same time, many scholars have illustrated how these transformations of subjectivity offer radical and liberatory possibilities through emerging practices of mimesis, identity formation, and knowledge creation: How do these practices change our understanding of tradition?

There are countless contemporary examples of phenomena that can be seen as hyper-traditions: neotraditional towns whose history is invented by the developers who create them and embraced by their inhabitants; intensifying fundamentalisms that articulate a political agenda based on the perceived loss of heritage, customs, morality, and/or identity in a globalized world; the political struggles over sites of varying religious and historical significance; and the rise of global tourism and the desire of the hyper-tourist to see and experience the "traditions" of particular destinations without the inconveniences that actual exposure may require. Indeed, hyper-traditions cannot be separated from the apparatus and relations of political economy. They circulate through global networks and circuits of capital exchange and serve as mechanisms by which it is possible to encounter "traditions" from all over the world. Thus, hyper-traditions arise in response, and often in direct opposition, to globalization at the same time that their deployment and resonance depend upon the same advanced communication infrastructure and technology.

As in past IASTE conferences, scholars and practitioners from such fields as architecture, architectural history, art history, anthropology, archaeology, folklore, geography, history, planning, sociology, urban studies, and related areas are invited to submit papers that address one of the three main tracks.

From Simulated Space to "Real" Tradition Contemporary communication networks have fueled the expansion of simulated spaces, which may not exist in the physical sense but are nonetheless real for those who access and occupy them. Is the uncharted realm of simulacra space used as the site for the re-imposition of "real" tradition or the invention of new traditions, or both? One example of this complex relationship appears in the film The Truman Show, whose premise, a fictitious "real-life" television show, influences our understanding of New Urbanist environments like Seaside, Florida, where the movie was filmed.

Papers in this track will examine how simulated space is mapped and navigated, and how the idea of tradition can be transformed within and by the virtual realm.

Hyper-Traditions and "Real" Places

Hyper-reality has opened up new social and cultural realms, from which new hyper-traditions regularly emerge. To a certain extent, virtual representation has become a key instrument for the transmission of "real" tradition and the act of place-making. This is evident not simply with simulated spaces but also with physical spaces that simulate places embodying "real" traditions. How have the cultural norms and rules that govern the hyper-real been absorbed and brought back into "the real"?

Papers in this track will examine the emergence of hyper-traditions: how they are shaped by the unique geography of the hyper-real, and how they give rise to new understandings of social life and/or influence the lived experience of "the real." Identity, Heritage, and Migration Migration is one of the most prominent factors in shifting cultural, economic, and political geographies throughout the world. Migration is a transformative force, not simply for migrants, but also for the places that have become the loci of migratory flows. From migration emerge new identities and cultural formations: hybrid identities and spaces, ethnic enclaves, etc. Yet these new hyper-formations are inextricably linked to the notion of heritage. What physical and cultural effects does the "hyper" have on representations of heritage? In many cases, the experience of migration also entails a perceived loss of identity, a struggle to preserve heritage, or the invention of a new heritage. Papers in this track will examine the complex relationships between identity, heritage, and migration.

SUBMISSION REQUIREMENTS

Interested colleagues are invited to submit a short, one-page abstract, not to exceed 500 words. Do not place your name on the abstract, but rather submit an attached one-page curriculum vitae with your address and name. All authors must submit an electronic copy of their abstract and short CV via e-mail. Abstracts and CVs must be placed within the body of the e-mail, and also as attachments.

E-mail this material to iaste@berkeley.edu no later than February 17, 2006.

Authors must specify their preference for one or two of the above tracks when submitting abstracts. Proposals for complete panels are welcome. All papers must be written and presented in English.

Following a blind peer review, papers may be accepted for presentation in the conference and/or publication in the conference Working Paper Series.

Contributors whose abstracts are accepted must preregister for the conference, pay registration fees of $375 (which includes a special discounted $25 IASTE membership fee), and prepare a full-length paper of 20-25 double-spaced pages. Registered students may qualify for a reduced registration fee of $175 (which includes a special discounted $25 IASTE membership fee). All participants must be IASTE members. Please note that expenses associated with hotel accommodations, travel, and additional excursions are not covered by the registration fees and have to be paid directly to the designated travel agent. Registration fees cover the conference program, conference abstracts, and access to all conference activities including receptions, keynote panels, and a short tour of nearby sites.

8) Conservation in Changing Societies: Heritage and Development

22-May-2006 - 25-May-2006
Raymond Lemaire International Centre for Conservation
Leuven, BELGIUM

In 2006 the Raymond Lemaire International Centre for Conservation will celebrate its 30th anniversary... After 30 years of multidisciplinary education, it is time to reflect on the past and the future of conservation philosophies and practices as they are conceived of in the Lemaire Centre’s program, through assessing what has been formulated, taught and disseminated by the RLICC and realized by its Alumni. Gauging the impact of the RLICC’s program on the five continents, and establishing a cross-cultural dialogue between the participants resulting in a series of resolutions for the future: these are the first challenges the conference must address. Moreover, through the contribution of its Alumni, the conference also wants to tackle the hot topic of globalisation (of thought and practice), to debate upon ‘multicultural approach versus ideology’ and to evaluate the applicability of different conservation theories. The RLICC wants to start this debate on three key levels, which have always been at the centre of its concerns and experience: the ‘monument’, the archaeological sites and remains, the urban and natural environment. Authors are called upon to contribute with theoretical or general papers as well as with practical applications which illustrate those topics. These will be divided in three sections. Section I The Monument in a multicultural perspective Section II Preservation of archaeological sites and remains Section III - Architectural conservation and the production of a high quality built environment
