

PORT ARTHUR TALKS

Cascades Female Factory Historic Site – contemporary history and exciting future

presented by Julie Henderson, Jo Lyngcoln and Jody Steele

The modern history of the Cascades Female Factory has seen many changes from its closure in 1904, purchase of Yard 1 by Government in 1976 for proclamation as a Historic Site, to the present day World Heritage listing as one of eleven Australian Convict Sites World Heritage property managed by Port Arthur Historic Site.

The talk will be presented by three Port Arthur staff intimately involved in the management and presentation of Cascades Female Factory today. Jody Steele, Heritage Programs Manager, and Jo Lyngcoln, Conservation Manager, have had a long association with the place as Parks & Wildlife heritage officers and in latter times through the World Heritage process and subsequent interpretation and conservation of the heritage values. Julie Henderson, Manager of the Site since July 2011, is very much involved with the day to day activities and seeing it evolve into a location offering world class delivery of service and product to its visitors.

Their presentation will focus on contemporary history (how we got to here), conservation principles (what we are doing at the moment), and vision for the future (what you might see in the next five years).

ALL WELCOME!
